New Foods, New Diets

On March 26, 1662, Samuel Pepys and four friends had dinner at his home in London, England. They ate beef, cheese, two kinds of fish, and six chickens. They did not eat any fresh fruit or vegetables. Over three hundred years ago, people in Europe ate differently from today. They looked different too. They were not thin, they were overweight.

Today people are learning more about health. People in North America and Europe are changing their way of eating. They are eating a lot of fresh fruit and vegetables. Many of the vegetables are raw. They do not cook these vegetables because cooking takes away some vitamins. They are also eating less sugar. They are not eating much red meat. They are drinking less cola and coffee. They are eating low-fat foods.

Diets are changing in a lot of countries, but this is not always good news. For example, the Japanese diet was very healthy for many years. People ate a lot of fish and vegetables. Now, they are eating more and more beef, sugar and dairy products (ice cream, butter and cheese), so there is more sickness such as heart disease.

Sometimes people eat lots of junk food because it tastes good. Or, other times, they do the opposite: eat very little because they want to lose weight. When are people going to learn? Too much food, too little food and the wrong foods are all bad ideas.

16. The Europeans of the past ate differently from the Europeans of today, and _____

- a) they thought fresh fruit and vegetables were important

Celine Dion, one of the biggest international stars in pop music history, was born in Canada in 1968. She is the youngest of the 14 children in the Dion family. She began singing in her parents' piano bar when she was just 5 years old. When she was 12, she recorded one of her first songs "Ce N' etait Qu'un Reve" ("It Was Only a Dream"), with the help of her brother Michel and her mother. Michel sent this song to a manager named Rene Angelil. When he listened to the demo tape, he decided to become her manager. Celine became famous only in Canada and France because all her songs were in French. At the age of 18, Celine saw Michael Jackson performing on TV and told Angelil she wanted to be a star like him. Angelil sent her to an English school to learn English, and also he changed her hair style and her physical appearance. Celine was now ready to be successful in the USA with her new image. Her first international success was the theme song for Disney's "The Beauty and the Beast". The song won both a Grammy and an Academy Award and reached pop charts. In 1994, she got married to Angelil, who is 26 years older than her. In 1996, she won her first Grammy and was invited to the opening ceremonies of the Atlanta Olympics. The following year, she sang "My Heart Will Go On", the theme song of the film "Titanic", and was once again number one. In 1999, she announced that her husband had throat cancer, so she had to take a break to spend more time at home. Two years later, she gave birth to her son. Dion returned to public eye in 2002 with her new hit "A New Day Has Come". She is still one of the hardest working stars in show business.
